

To whom it may concern:

I first met Shari when my wife and I were trying to re-home our one year old weimeraner, Macy. Unfortunately, I did not do enough research on this breed of dogs and was unaware of their extraordinarily high energy level.

I contacted Shari for support in trying to help us find Macy a suitable family for placement. Shari came to our house within a day to evaluate Macy and to discuss options for Macy's future. Shari said to us that she would be more than happy to help us find Macy a new home, but if we were at all hesitant about the decision to get rid of Macy, she would also be more than happy to help us keep her. Since that meeting, Shari has been a true God's send.

Shari showed up the next day with a new dog house and a bunch of bones for Macy. The second thing Shari did was phoned her contact Michelle at Bark Busters Dog Training and asked her to come over ASAP to begin training Macy as well as training us with the tools we needed to get Macy under control. Michelle gave us great tips and training techniques on how to make Macy realize that she was no longer the leader of our household. Shari then contacted a local fence company and is in the process of getting a fence installed for us to give Macy an area in which she can stretch her legs. Just recently with the news of losing my job, Shari offered to pay for Macy to get up to date on all her shots as well as getting up to date with her heart worm & flea & tick preventative medications.

Shari has not once hesitated offering to pay for something for Macy in order to make Macy's and our lives better. Shari is truly a one of a kind person with a real passion for animals.

Macy provides our home with a special warmth as well as a true companionship for my children. Before we met Shari we never thought this would be possible.

Sincerely,

Jessica & Scott Barr
